ABSTRACT

In 1988, a telephone survey was conducted of students at Prince George's Community College (PGCC) who were enrolled in fall 1987, but who were not registered for spring 1988. The purposes of the study wer; to ascertain students' reasons for not returning to PGCC and to determine what the college could have done to influence the non-returning students to stay. Out of an interviewee pool of 767 non-returning students, 343 (54%) were contacted and successfully interviewed. The demographic and academic characteristics of the respondents closely reflected those of the total target population of 5,222 non-returning PGCC students. When asked to cite their primary reason for not returning to PGCC, 22.3% gave reasons relating to employment, 12.2% indicated that they had transferred to another school, 11.3% gave financial reasons, 9.2% said that they had achieved their immediate goal, and 6.3% cited health problems. To determine the demographic or academic characteristics that might have had an impact on the reasons for not returning to the college, students in each of these response categorie were further subdivided for analysis by race, gender, age, full-/part-time status, most recent educational goal, admission status, and cumulative grade point average. Less than 20% of the respondents said the college could have done anything to have influenced them to return for the spring semester. Of the 315 people who responded to the question, 85% indicated they would be returning to PGCC. The appendixes, which comprise the bulk of the document, provide data tables, respondent comments, and the survey instrument. (JMC)

NON-RETURNING STUDENTS, FALL 1988 - SPRING 1988 Telephone Survey

Enrollment Analysis EA88-8

INTRODUCTION

During the Spring 1987 semester Dr. Bickford formed a college-wide ad hoc working committee on retention which, among other tasks, was mandated to collect data on why students do not return to the college after having attended one or more semesters. One of the methods chosen to gather this information was a telephone survey of Fall 1987 students who did not return in Spring 1988. The research questions to be answered by the survey were:

- 1. What are the reasons students do not return to Prince George's Community College?
- 2. What could the college have done to influence these non-returning students to stay?

This report summarizes the results of that survey.

METHODOLOGY

DESIGN

There were 5,222 Fall 1987 students who were not registered in any credit courses as of the Spring 1988 third week official statistical date. A systematic sample of 1,044 of these non-returning students was selected for telephoning in order to ensure 400 completed interviews. (Four hundred interviews were targeted to obtain a tolerated sampling error of +/- 5 percent at a 95 percent confidence level.)

A questionnaire was developed and tested for ease of administration and effectiveness in answering the research questions.

The Retention Committee suggested that volunteer faculty, staff and administrators be trained to do the telephone interviewing. The Office of Institutional Research and Analysis estimated that 10 interviewers could complete 400 interviews in a little less than 3 three-hour shifts (see "Project Specifications" in the Appendix C). According to the proposal, interviewers would be required to attend a training session to ensure consistency in interview techniques. Telephoning would take place in a room on campus large enough and with enough phones for 10 people, and supervision of the interviewers would be provided by the Research Office. A memo was sent to each of the constituency leaders requesting four volunteers from each group. (Copies of the memos are in the appendix.) Interviewing sessions were scheduled for two evenings and one afternoon.

IMPLEMENTATION

Unfortunately, implementation did not work as planned. None of the constituency groups was able to come up with four volunteers and none of the volunteers could work all three shifts in the supervised telephoning area. The final result was nineteen interviewers with some of them working unsupervised in their own offices or at home. This means that there could have been considerable variation in interviewing style. The fact that there were new interviewers in each session rather than the "experienced" interviewers expected in the second and third sessions also resulted in fewer than the desired 400 interviews being completed.

Although only 343 interviews were completed, analysis suggested that the results would not have been very different if 400 had been completed. Frequency distributions were examined with the responses from 182 interviews entered into the data base, again with 248 and again with 343. The percentage of respondents who mentioned each of the top 4 major reasons for not returning did not vary more than one percent; therefore, it is unlikely that the percentages would have changed if 400 interviews had been completed and entered into the database.

RESULTS

RESPONDENT PROFILE

The interviewers attempted to contact a total of 767 non-returning students by telephone. There were 76 wrong numbers and 60 disconnected numbers; interviews were completed with 343 (54%) of the 631 students with accurate numbers.

The table on the next page shows the percentages by race, sex, age, full-time/part-time, most recent goal, admission status, and cumulative grade point average for the respondents and for the target population (all 5,222 Fall 1987 students who did not return to PGCC in Spring 1988). As can be seen, the demographic and academic characteristic; of the respondents closely reflected those of the target population; there was no evidence of respondent bias. This is a major advantage of a telephone survey over a mail survey. (See "Project Specifications" in Appendix C.) We can feel comfortable that the views of the respondents were representative of the entire Fall 1987 - Spring 1988 non-returning student population.

WHAT WAS THE MAJOR 'EASON FOR YOUR NOT RETURNING TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE?

This question was asked first as an open-ended question to get responses without any prompting. In addition, after the respondents gave their major reason, they were then read a list of 20 possible reasons and asked to rate each one as "a major reason, a minor reason, or not a reason for your decision not to return to PGCC." The responses to the open-ended question were grouped into 13 categories for easier analysis. The individual responses are included in Appendix A. The graph below illustrates the breakdown into the 12 categories.

REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING Fall 1987 - Spring 1988

(N = 336)

Of the 336 respondents who answered the open-ended question, 75 gave reasons relating to employment. Forty-one of the respondents said they had transferred to another school. Financial leasons were given by 38 respondents and 31 said they had achieved their immediate goal. Looking at reasons which the college might have some control over shows that only 10 respondents said something to indicate they were dissatisfied with the college in any way. Nineteen respondents admitted having academic problems, and 21 said that the courses they wanted were not available when they could take them. (See page 13 in Appendix A for a table showing numbers and percentages for all the categories.)

An effort was made to determine what demographic or academic characteristics might have had an impact on the reasons for not returning to the college between Fall 1987 and Spring 1988. On each of the next 6 pages is a analysis of the major reasons given by the following different demographic and academic breakdowns:

Race and Gender

Age

Full-time and Part-time

Most Recent Goal

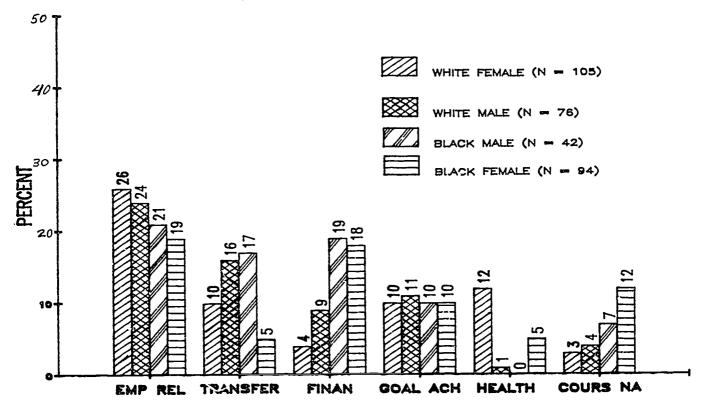

Admission Status

Cumulative G.P.A.

MAJOR REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING

FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 BY RACE AND GENDER

Four race/gender groups were made up of enough respondents to make separate analysis meaningful. The graph shows the top reasons given by white females, white males, black males, and black females.

Twenty-seven of the 105 white females gave employment as their major reason for not returning to the college in Spring 1988. Health-related reasons were given by 13 (12%) of the white female respondents, a much higher percentage than in any other race/gender category.

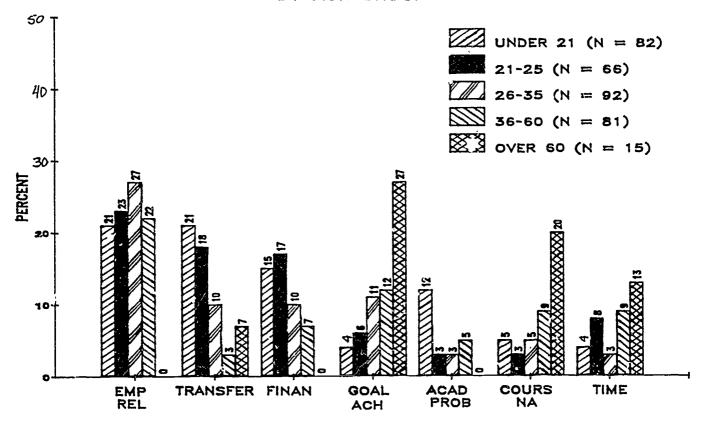

Out of 76 white males, 18 (24%) said they did not return in Spring 1988 due to employment-related reasons. The other reasons most often mentioned by white males were that they transferred to another college or that they had achieved their immediate educational goal.

Nine of 42 black males (19%) gave employment-related reasons for not returning to the college in Spring 1988. Another 8 gave financial reasons and 7 said they had transferred to another school.

Employment-related reasons were also given by 18 of the 94 black female respondents, while 17 gave financial reasons for not returning. Eleven black females (12%) said that courses were not available when they could take them.

MAJOR REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 BY AGE GROUP

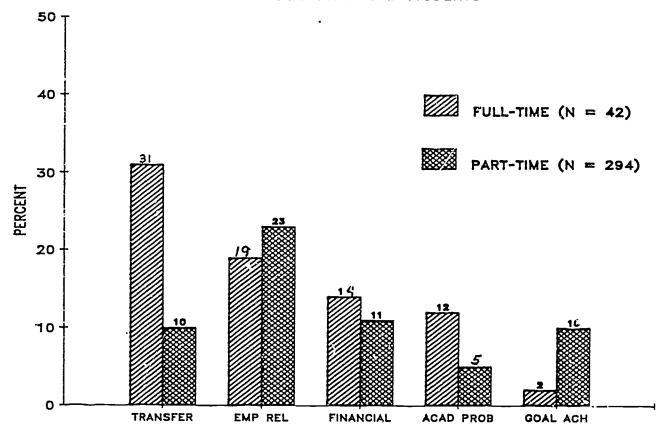

Several trends are noticeable when looking at the reasons given by age group. Employment becomes more important through age 35, then becomes less important - to the point that none of those over 60 mentioned employment as a reason not to return to the Transferring to another college was tied for the number one reason for the under 21 age group, but becomes less important for each older age group (one respondent over 60 did give transferring as a reason for not returning!). Financial reasons, also, after an initial rise in importance through age 25, became less important as a reason for not returning as age increased. Reasons frequently given by the older non-returning student included immediate goal achieved, courses not available when wanted, and insufficient time to take courses. One additional reason was mentioned by those respondents under 21. Ten of 82 (12%) respondents in that age group admitted to having had academic problems.

MAJOR REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING

FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 FULL-TIME AND PART-TIME STUDENTS

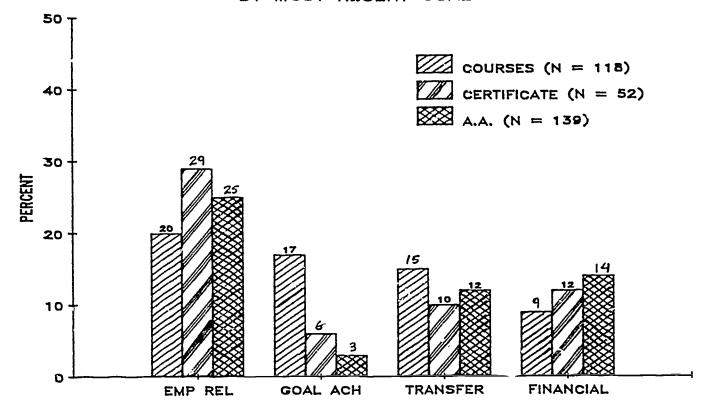

Eighty-eight percent of the survey respondents were part-time in Fall 1987. Twenty-three percent of the respondents who were part-time gave reasons for not returning that were related to employment. Also important to that group were reasons relating to transferring, financial problems, and achieving their immediate goals.

Almost a third of the 42 respondents who were full-time said they had transferred to another school. Eight gave employment related reasons and 6 said they had financial problems. Five of those who were full-time said they did not return due to academic problems.

REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING

FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 BY MOST RECENT GOAL

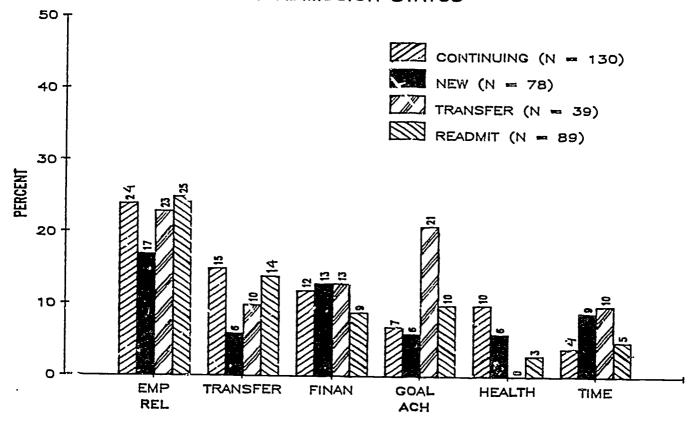

As the graph shows, no matter what the student goal was, employment-related reasons were given most often as the reason for not returning to the college in Spring 1988.

Thirty-eight of the 11% respondents (32%) whose goal was to take courses only said their goal was achieved or that they had transferred to another school.

After employment demands, the reason given most often by the respondants whose goal was to get an AA or a certificate was financial problems.

MAJOR REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 BY ADMISSION STATUS

Reasons for not returning also varied by fall semester admission status. While reasons related to job demands were given most often by respondents in all groups, other reasons were important for each subgroup. A fifth of the respondents who had attended other colleges and entered PGCC as a transfer student in Fall 1987 did not return in the spring because they had achieved their goal at PGCC. Fifteen percent of those students who were continuing their studies at PGCC in Fall 1987 left in the spring to study elsewhere. A similar proportion of those students readmitted to PGCC in Fall 1987 had transferred to another college in Spring 1988.

MAJOR REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING FALL 1987 - SPRING 1988 BY CUMULATIVE G.P.A.

In previous retention studies it has been shown that retention improves with increased cumulative GPA, except for those students with a cumulative GPA of 3.75 or higher. Because of this, a little extra effort was put into finding out who these students are and why don't they return. The 37 survey respondents who were in this group were all attending part-time in Fall 1987. They tended to be in the 26 to 60 age group. Thirty-three of the 37 said they did plan to return to the college. Thirteen (36%) said they did not return in Spring 1988 because of employment demands. Other return by at least 10 percent of the group were courses not available when wanted, insufficient time, and immediate educational goal achieved.

At the other end of the GPA scale, 16 of 60 respondents with a 0.00 GPA said they did not come back due to employment related reasons. Nine gave financial reasons, 6 admitted that they were having academic problems, and another 6 said they had insufficient time to attend school. (Some of these 60 respondents may have been auditing classes or taking avelopmental courses which do not award credits as opposed to failing credit courses.)

For the respondents with a cumulative GPA of .01 - 3.74 employment demands was given as a reason less often as GPA went up. Transferring to another school was given as a reason more often 3 GPA went up.

WHICH REASON ON THE LIST IS A MAJOR REASON, WHICH IS A MINOR REASON AND WHICH IS NOT A REASON FOR THE DECISION NOT TO RETURN TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE THIS SEMESTER?

The questionnaire had a list of 20 possible reasons for a student not returning to college. These were read to the respondent who was asked to rate each as a major reason, a minor reason, or not a reason for their decision not to return. As the table below shows, the responses were much the same for this question as for the open-ended question. Employment was still the number one major reason, with financial reasons, goal achieved and transferred to another school among the top 6 major reasons. In addition, insufficient time was the major reason given by 105 respondents and change in family was given as a major reason by 47 (14%) of the respondents. (In this question a respondent could give more than one major reason, whereas, in the previous open-ended question all responses were put in only one category. For instance, many of those who responded that employment was a major reason also said insufficient time was a major reason.)

REASONS FOR NOT RETURNING TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE (From question with list of reasons provided)

Top Six Chosen as a Major Reason

	NUMBER OF	PERCENT OF

Insufficient Time	105	31%
Financial Reasons	59	18%
Transferred	48	148
Change in Family	47	148
Goal Achieved	45	13%

When the number of times a reason was rated as minor was added to the times it was rated as a major reason, a slightly different picture appears. (See the table in App dix A.) Transferred drops down to the number 10 spot and other reasons given by at least 20 percent of the respondents included inconvenient class times, undecided about goals, and academic problems.

What factors were not important in influencing a student's decision not to return? The table below shows those reasons which the fewest of the respondents rated as major reasons even when prompted by the form of the question!

Registration Difficulty	4	1%
Lack of Support	6	28

High School Preparation	9	3%

When the number of respondents who rated the reasons listed above as a minor reason were added, only high school preparation was rated as a reason by more than 10 percent of the respondents. (See the table in Appendix A.)

COULD THE COLLEGE HAVE HELPED YOU IN ANY WAY WHICH WOULD HAVE INFLUENCED YOU TO RETURN TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE THIS SEMESTER?

Less than 20 percent of the respondents said the college could have done anything to have influenced them to return for the spring semester. those 66 respondents who did suggest something the college could have done to influence their coming back, approximately a third commented on course availability or scheduling. Nearly one half mentioned some type of additional service that could be offered by the college

LOULD THE COLLEGE HAVE INFLUENCED YOU TO RETURN?

(N = 334)

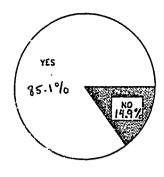

(Twelve of those, however, wer referring to financial aid availability.) Specific comments are listed in Appendix B.

DO YOU PLAN TO RETURN TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE?

Of the 315 people who responded to that question, 85 percent said they would be returning to the college. Three-fourths of that group said they would return either in Summer or Fall 1988. Overall of the 343 respondents, over half said they would be returning by Fall 1988.

STUDENTS PLANHING TO RETURN TO PGCC

(N = 315)

SUMMARY

The results of this survey appear to be representative and can be generalized to the overall Fall 1987 - Spring 1988 non-returning population with confidence. The profile of the respondents was mearly identical with that of the non-returning population as a whole. Analysis during data collection revealed that response fluctuation stabilized, and there was consistency of responses among similar questions.

In response to the open-ended question "What is the major real on for your not returning to Prince George's Community College?", only 15 percent gave responses that the college has any control over (dissatisfied, academic problems, desired courses not available). In response to the question "Could the college have helped you in any way which would have influenced you to return?", fewer than 20 percent said yes. Of those, approximately a third had comments referring to course scheduling or availability, and a third suggested services that could have been provided. Considering the total 5,222 Fall 1987 students who did not return in Spring 1988, the survey results suggest that around 1,000 students could possibly have been influenced to return in spring. Thus the findings relating to this 15 - 20 percent should not be taken lightly.

Overall, however, the results show students who are juggling work and school on a tight schedule and a tight budget. They were here in Fall 1987 and they will be here again as time and money perm.t. Eighty-five percent of the respondents said they would be returning to the college at some point. One-half said they would return by Fall 1988. Whether they actually return or not, those results dispel any theory of students leaving in droves because of any particular dissatisfaction with the college, and makes a statement about the respondents which shows satisfaction with the college and a positive feeling toward returning.

MAKE COURSES/SCHEDULING MORE AVAILABLE

Let her take the second accounting course without taking another course.

Could have helped with employment through courses.

Didn't like the type of study offered in trouble shooting in electronics.

Help her find a better paying job to be flexible to class schedule.

If ENGR 205 or 206 (methods course) would be offered in summer.

If class was not cancelled.

If more weekenders in finance.

If they offered a telecredit course in improving reading skills.

More creative writing courses.

More special programs such as work or job programs.

More courses in folk or bluegrass.

Not cancel classes.

Offer more classes/sections of classes. Ore section was at a bad time (Spanish 202).

Offer shorthand courses for two or thrue days a week instead of one day. Too difficult in one day.

Offer non-credit electrical course for credit.

Offer needed courses in spring.

Only if they offered auto courses leading to two year degree.

Part-time employees could get half tuition reimbursement.

Send survey to students to encourage discussion and problem solving. Working students only available on weekends. Survey students' interest; for weekend offerings and times.

Took a course in career development and was interested in that field - if there were more courses offered in this she would like to take them.

Wanted to take at least four evaning classes and could not coordinate the times.

Will come back right away if times of courses are changed.

Better selection and scheduling of evening classes; better bus transportation to the school in the evening and extension centers.

If he had talked to counselor possibly he would have selected another course.

Look at the course description.

OFFER UPPER LEVEL COURSES/FOUR YEAR COLLEGE

Offer advanced courses.

Offer four year college curriculum.

Would have continued if it had been a four year institution.

Only if four year degree would be offered.

Better counseling.

Better financial aid programs needed to attend classes.

Better advice.

Child care or children's courses.

Financial help.

Financial aid.

Pay me to go to school.

Registration made easier. Not such long lines.

Send letter to discuss.

Tutoring in English.

Withdrew from classes after four weeks in Fall 1987 and couldn't get any money back. If the college could have given some money back, he might have registered this spring.

Work out a way for him to get his AA in accounting here without losing a lot of credits. Would need temporary financial aid for 30 to 40 days.

Tutoring.

IMPROVE QUALITY OF INSTRUCTION

Better instructors.

Could have graded portfolio more quickly.

Improve quality of instructor. No one in the class pursued their complaints about instructor with administration.

Whole class went to head of department to complain. Teacher announced when she wasn't going to be there. Wasn't there for exam. Student didn't learn enough and would like to take class over free. Class was finished by substitute.

IMPROVE ATMOSPHERE

Liked the teachers but not the atmorphere.

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

Student is in last semester of religious program at Trinity College sponsored by her parish. She would like to take business courses at PGCC, but they are far different and she needs to devote energies to complete program at Trinity.

Can't come back for awhile. Have twin sons now!

Definitely coming back!

First attended the college in 1964 when it was still at Suitland High School!

I know I can get a good education, I just have to apply myself!

Job demands make college feasible only during the fall.

The prerequisite classes were the best thing I've done in my academic career. At PGCC I took classes that at Maryland are weed-out classes. At PGCC I got a full understanding of the subject; I don't think I would have gotten that at Maryland. I really appreciated the quality of what I got at PGCC. The only reason I left was because I achieved my goal.

If I had a choice I would rather go to PGCC than University of Maryland for a four year degree in interior design. The counselors and the teachers of PGCC were much more helpful.

Had problems with computer courses.

I liked the classes very much but was unable to finish because of a car accident.

Came to PGCC from University of Maryland. Found PGCC much more personal, more helpful. Didn't feel "lost in the shuffle" as she did at UM.

I commend the college for all the good work they're doing. I would like to even come full time here, but employment commitments prevented this.

I did withdraw because I lost interest.

Not interested in child ware on campus.

After transfer to Maryland, may return to take a few math courses. Enjoyed coming here.

Registration was very slow process. Took course at AAFB. Book purchasing process too lengthy.

Would have signed up this semester if not moving. Great experience at college. Classes were very convenient.

Interested in personal enrichment course when one is available.

Plans to become a full time student if he can work out a schedule with his job. He feels he would do better taking day classes.

Need night slass.

Course he took was too fast paced. Felt he was not self-disciplined to work harder.

Wants a quick degree. Will probably go to a trade school. Exploring requirements there.

She has not left the college, but is taking non-credit courses.

Thought the teachers were really good to give extra attention when he did poorly.

Very well organized survey.

PROJECT SPECIFICATIONS SURVEY OF NON-RETURNING STUDENTS

OVERVIEW

The College-wide Ad Hoc Working Committee on Retention has been charged by the President to conduct a retention needs assessment. The committee has determined that a part of that package would be a survey of "non-returning students" -- individuals who have attended the college in a particular semester, but not returned the following semester. The following is a proposal for a telephone survey of those non-returning students.

RESEARCH QUESTIONS

- 1. What are the reasons students do not return to Prince George's Community College?
- 2. What could the college have done/do to influence these non-returning students to stay?

RESEARCH DESIGN

Survey Method: The Office of Institutional Research and Analysis recommends a telephone survey of a randomly selected sample of the approximately 5,000 students who will not return between Fall 1987 and Spring 1988.

A telephone survey is recommended over a mail survey because of the nature of the population being surveyed. An individual who has attended PGCC and not returned may be less likely to fill out and return a questionnaire from the college than other groups that have been surveyed such as PGCC graduates. (Montgomery College had only a 12% response rate when they surveyed non-returning students by mail in FY86.) A low response rate would necessitate follow-up telephone calls to determine if a response bias existed, i.e., whether the respondents differed from nonrespondents regarding the issues under study. A telephone survey is the most reliable way to ensure that the results will be representative of the entire population of non-returning students.

Development of Survey Instrument: The Office of Research and Analysis will develop a questionnaire appropriate for telephone use which will address the research questions identified earlier in this document.

Pilot Testing of Instrument: The research office will conduct a minimum of 10 interviews to test the instrument for effectiveness in eliciting useful information and for ease of administration.

Selection of Random Sample: Approximately 400 completed interviews would be necessary to obtain a tolerated sampling error of  $\pm 1/2$  percent at a 95 percent confidence level. (This means that if the survey found that 20 percent of the individuals surveyed did not return to PGCC due to conflicts with employment, we could be 95 percent certain that the actual percentage of the approximately 5,000 non-returning students who did not return due to employment conflicts was between 15 and 25 percent.)

The Office of Research and Analysis will select an adequate random sample to ensure 400 completed interviews.

Training of Interviewers: Interviewers must attend a training/practice session. It is imperative that each interviewer asks the questions and probes for answers in the same way, using as close to identical words as possible. It is recommended that no more than 10 interviewers be used to ensure this needed consistency.

The Office of Institutional Research and Analysis will provide training in proper interviewing techniques and the specific requirements of this survey instrument.

Phone Room Supervision: It is recommended that the telephoning be conducted between 6:00 and 9:00 in the evening with at least one afternoon session (2:00 - 5:00) to call those individuals who could not be reached in the evening. A member of the research office staff will supervise the interviewing, answer questions, disseminate telephone lists to the interviewers, and keep track of numbers of calls made, call backs and completed interviews.

Selection of Interviewers and Arrangement of a Phone Bank: It is estimated that it will take 80 "person hours" to complete 400 five minute telephone interviews. Taking into account wrong numbers, no answers, refusals, and leaving messages, approximately 5 interviews can be completed each hour by each person. At that rate 10 interviewers could complete 400 interviews in a little less than 3 three hour shifts.

NEEDED:

- 1. Up to 10 interviewers (suggest faculty/staff volunteers) available evenings 6:00 9:00 and one afternoon 2:00-5:00 starting September 28, 1987.
- 2. A room on campus with up to 10 phones available during the same hours listed above.

Data Analysis and Completion of a Written Report: As the interviews are completed, data can be entered into a database for SAS analysis.

The Office of Research and Analysis will provide for data entry and analysis, and will prepare a written report summarizing project methodology, survey findings, data analysis, and conclusions. Any recommendations will be prepared by the Retention Committee and issued separately.

PRINCE GEORGE'S COMMUNITY COLLEGE Office of Institutional Research and Analysis

Survey of Nonreturning Stude ts Fall 87 - Spring 88

CHEAT SHEET

COVER PAGE

- 1. The name, social security number, and phone number of the person to be interviewed is already on the cover page. Do not accept the opinion of parents, spouse, etc. Interview only the person listed.
- 2. Each time a call is made, note the date, time, your last name, and the outcome of the call.

IC - Interview completed.

PAR - Interview partially completed - AVOID.

CB - Call back - specify a time when we can call the person back.

LM - Left message for the person to call us back.

This includes messages left on answering machines. Message should state "Please call the Research Office at Prince George's Community College between 9 AM and 4 PM at 322-0722."

REF - Refused - specify why.

NA - No answer.

WN - Wrong number.

DISC - Disconnected.

If the person is unavailable i.e., away at college, out of town, please write down the specific circumstances.

QUESTIONNAIRE

- Question 1. A screening question, in case the name of a current student was included in the list by mistake.
- Question 2. The list is made up of people who were not students in Spring 88 as of the official third week stat date. This question will enable us to categorize those who went through the registration process but dropped out before third week.
- Question 3. This is an attempt to capture the person's major reason before it is biased by the responses in Question 4. If the person has answered 'yes' to Question 2, you might rephrase the question to read, "What was the major reason for your not completing the spring semester at the college?"

- Question 4. This is the heart of the survey. Please, be sure to get a proper response for each reason. You may have to remind the person periodically to tell you whether the item was a major reason, a minor reason or not a reason for the decision not to return. Even if the response to question 3 seems clear and complete, i.e., transferred to UM, joined the military, you still must ask question 4 in its entirety. However, you may want to rephrase the question slightly "I'm going to read some other possible reasons..." or "Please tell me, for each one, whether it was a major reason, along with [response to question 3] ...
- Question 5. If yes, specify how. If the person has comments in addition to a "no" response, please record them on the bottom half of the page.
- Question 6. If yes, specify when.
